In March 2020, the CDC abruptly changed how death certificates were recorded. While this might seem like a mere formality, the CDC only made this change for one type of death — COVID-19 — and circumvented multiple federal laws to do so.

Join our panel of experts — researchers, doctors, lawyers, medical ethicists, educators and lawmakers — as they take an in-depth look at the CDC's actions and the dire consequences they've had on all of American society ... unending lockdowns, school and business closures, an increase in suicides and mental health issues, economic hardship, loved ones being forced to die all alone, and more.

Tune in to learn:

Why we should be concerned about death certificate data.

Why accuracy, integrity and transparency are so important during a public health crisis.

How the CDC set the stage for widespread devastation — physical, psychological and economic.

What each of us can do so that incidents of this magnitude never happen again.
